Grin Verlag. Paperback. Condition: New. 68 pages. Dimensions: 8.3in. x 5.8in. x 0.2in. Scholarly Research Paper from the year 2003 in the subject Romance Languages - Comparative Studies, grade: 67 Punkte (2) (B), University of Canterbury (School of European Culture and Languages), 30 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: To begin with I shall present an overview of some of the most common or most debated interpretations of the two novels and the issues they raise. I also question whether it is legitimate to compare Camus L'etranger, which is often read alongside his philosophical essay Le Mythe de Sisyphe, to Kafka's Der Prozess, which might be expressive of a philosophy but whose author only ever expressed himself in literary writing. In the following the novels are then compared simultaneously and their similarities and differences examined from different angles, such as their treatment of their common theme of law, guilt and trial in part two, which I see partly under the aspect of the absurd. The idea of the absurd is also relevant when comparing the two main characters Josef K. and Meursault later on. For the further interpretation of both the characters, but especially to solve the riddles surrounding Meursault's nature and the questions of reader's sympathy, the narrative perspective is crucial and is examined in part four. Subsequently, the theme of philosophical ideas being expressed in literary form becomes important again as I look at the use of image and symbolism in L'etranger and Der Prozess as well as at the genres of the French récit and parable and the philosophical and literary implications of the choice of genre, symbolism or narrative perspective. Kafka's Der Prozess and Camus L'etranger have one important thing in common and that is that both are extremely rich novels which can be read...
