Paperback. Condition: New. 312 pages. You're about to read the world's first black and white novel! Dr. William Raven has a rare disorder of the central nervous system (achromatopsia), which distorts his vision. A devastating color-blindness. Since birth, everything he's seen looks like a strange, black and white movie. The Past. Two years ago, Raven lost his license to practice medicine. The reason: Stephanie Lane, the most beautiful woman he'd ever seen. A simple face-lift. But something went horribly wrong. On purpose! The Present. Enter a mysterious femme fatale. Her goal: To have Raven perform plastic surgery on her. Make her look exactly like the real Stephanie (deformities included). Her motive: The real Stephanie's married to the richest man in New Berlin. Who's stopping them? An overprotective, sexually jealous husband and Stephanie's friend, a bizarre, Marilyn Manson-like, ex-musician-turned-private-detective, named Lizzie Lennon. The Place. Imagine Mardi Gras, Carnival, and Studio 54 all rolled up into one. A smorgasbord of sex, drugs, masquerades, and claustrophobia. Then, transplant that atmosphere into a spaceship the size of the Titanic, which takes tourists around the moon and back, like some weirdly futuristic Carnival Cruise vacation. The hook: A very high price tag. In more ways than one. Only the ultra-rich can afford this get away. And, since the ship is traveling through space, it conveniently remains outside the jurisdiction of any country. No laws, no prosecution, no taboos. Will Raven's vision problems prevent him from getting the girl, getting his medical license back, and avoid a murder rap? This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
